Hundreds of local residents expected to take part in 'Night Out Against Crime'

■ 'Lock your doors, turn on your porch light and go outside to meet your neighbors,' is the message from the police department for Tuesday evening

By Steve Marschke

At least 14 West Sacramento neighborhoods plan to participate in the annual "National Night Out Against Crime" to be held Tuesday evening.

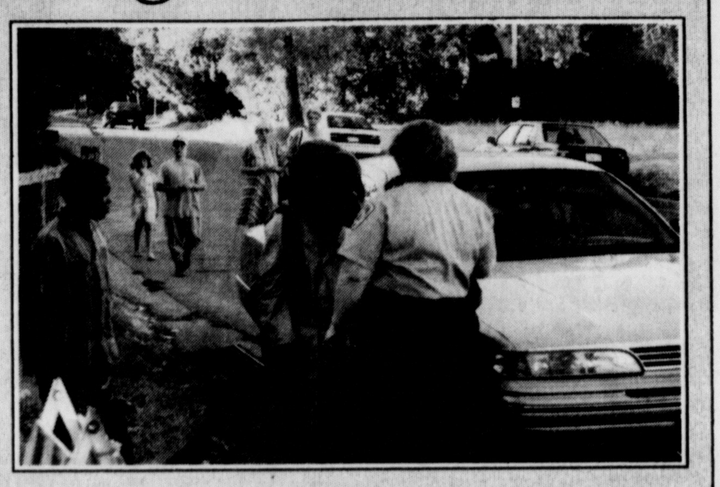
Lisa Cox, a community services officer for the West Sacramento Police Department who is helping to organize local participation, said this number is up three from last year, which was the city's first year of participation in the project.

"It's just basically to make a statement," she explained, "to give a 'going away party' to crime and drugs. We've found that neighborhoods that have parties have less crime afterwards. It makes a difference."

The "National Night Out" encourages residents to get to know their neighbors and help mobilize towards crime prevention -- including learning to watch over each other. Block parties will be held, and neighbors will be encouraged to attend.

"Lock your doors, turn on your porch lights, and go out and socialize for the evening," said Cox. "It helps people get acquainted with their neighbors."

It is the 12th year of the annual national "Night Out" program, which is sponsored by law enforcement agencies, a light bulb maker and others. Last year -- the first year of participation in West Sacramento -- about 600 local people participated in the block parties.



"McGruff the Crime Dog" confers at a neighborhood block party during last year's "Night Out Against Crime"

LISA COX, Police community services officer

Those who organized in advance will have permission to close their streets for the parties. Some of the earliest neighborhoods to sign up will receive visits from "McGruff the Crime Dog" and from "Jack Rec," the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Dept. mascot.

Scheduled block parties are:

■ Lilac Lane: a barbeque will be held from 6 to 9 p.m.

■ Todhunter Ave., between Carrie and Lisbon: a dessert party will last from 6 to 9 p.m.

■ Vermont Ave., between 17th and 19th: a barbeque, 6-9 p.m.

■ Buckeye Dr., from Poplar to Balsam: snacks and dessert, 6-9 p.m.

■ Decker and Tyler at Constitution: a barbeque, 6-9 p.m.

■ Elder Dr., closed at both ends: a barbeque, 6-9 p.m.

■ Capitol City Apartments clubhouse on Madrone Ave.: an ice cream social from 5-7 p.m.

■ The park on Duran Ave.: a barbeque, 6-9 p.m.

■ The 2800 block of Butler Ct.: a dessert party, 7:30-9 p.m.

■ Perez Ct. at Allan Ave.: dessert party, 6-9 p.m.

■ 600 block of Williams St.: a potluck, 5-10 p.m.

■ Timber Apartments on Touchstone Pl.: dessert, 6-10 p.m.

■ 400 block of 4th St.: juice, cookies and kids' activities, 6-9 p.m.

■ Mergansers Ct., 6-9 p.m. barbeque.

Cox said that any neighbors not already in an area signed up for the "Night Out" are still invited to participate, although it is too late to arrange for the closing of streets. She asked that any new participants call her at 372-2461 so that the police and fire departments can be made aware of any additional block parties Tuesday evening.

Ramos floats finance idea

By David Weller

Southport landowners Frank Ramos and Marvin "Buzz" Oates have come up with a plan to use land owned by the Port of Sacramento and their own Southport property as collateral for funding the new Industrial Blvd bridge.

The plan would also require the port to donate 100 acres of property to a private developer to be named later who would be willing to take on bond debt in exchange for the donation of property.

The plan the pair have been presenting to local public officials would require the city to establish a Mello-Roos bond district which would include the 500 acres of publicly owned port land and the 675 acres owned by a Ramos, Oates and their partners which has been marked for the Southport Industrial Park.

Under the plan, bonds would be sold based on the value of the entire 1,175 acres. The Ramos/Oates partnership would make the bond payments generated from its 675 acres.

Ramos says he is willing to shoulder the debt burden because other Southport do not have the necessary cash available, and because he wants to get development started.

"If we don't get a bridge out there, and roads, and sewer, and drainage, then we won't be able to get started. Someone has to bite the bullet, and we are willing," Ramos said.

Issuing bonds on land owned by the port, however, would be a little more problematic. Ramos' plan takes the problems into account.

Already operating under a $17 million debt burden, the port does not have the cash flow necessary to take on additional debt. An even dicier problem comes from the fact that the port is a public entity. When the city issues Mello-Roos bonds on property, that property becomes subject to foreclosure by the city in the event the property owners cannot make the payments.

Because the City of West Sacramento does not have jurisdiction over the Port of Sacramento, there is a legal question over whether the city would be able to foreclose on port property.

In order to avoid both the cash flow problem and the legal question, Ramos and Oates are proposing that the entire debt burden for the 500 acres of port property be concentrated into 100 acres and given away to a private developer willing to shoulder the debt.

The financial effect of such an action would be favorable to all parties involved, according to Ramos. The city would raise enough money to build its bridge and the Southport Industrial Park landowners would increase the value of their land from $10-$15 thousand per acre to about $80,000

Man killed by slow-moving railroad vehicle on I St. bridge

By Steve Marschke

A 26-year old transient man died Monday night about five hours after he was struck by a vehicle servicing a rail line on the I St. Bridge.

John Wesley Cudd, who maintains a Sacramento post office box but no permanent address, was hit by a Southern Pacific truck which was backing along the rail line on the West Sacramento side of the bridge.

"The pedestrian was dragged about 500 feet, almost across the bridge," said Lt. Russ Thomas of the West Sacramento police department. "They did not know they hit him."

The truck, moving at what police estimated to be from three to five miles per hour, struck Cudd at about 5:30 p.m. The impact severed one of the man's legs, amputated the foot from the other leg, and left him with massive internal injuries. He was taken to the UC Davis Medical Center with a faint pulse. He died during a second surgery at the medical center.

Thomas said there was room for Cudd to have stepped out of the path of the vehicle if he had seen it coming, and said police right now could only speculate as to why he was on the rail line in the truck's path.

He may not have seen or heard the slow-moving vehicle while he was on the tracks, or he may have stepped onto the tracks from behind an obstruction which had screened it from view, said Thomas.

500-acre Port development planned

By David Weller

The West Sacramento Planning Commission is scheduled August 3 to consider a tentative map and a development agreement for Seaway International Trade Center, a planned development of the Port of Sacramento.

The subdivision map includes 275 acres for water related industries, 98 acres for a business park, 21 acres for light industrial uses, 40 acres for parks and recreation facilities, and 72 acres for open space.

The port development is planned for the 500 acres of port property between the proposed Southport Industrial Park and the Arlington Oaks neighborhood.

Although the item is on the agenda for a public hearing, Port Manager John Sulpizio believes that the port and city staff are not in agreement on enough of the issues relevant to the subdivision map and development agreement to warrant going before the commission at this time. He plans to ask for a postponement until several development issues are resolved.

"We've been working with the city on this for a couple of years. It doesn't make sense to hold a hearing while we're still not in agreement," he said.

Among the matters still at issue are how the city is going to obtain the right of way for the proposed bridge and a "fair and equitable entitlement package," according to Sulpizio.

Local trucking interests trying to change city's 'negative attitude'

By David Weller

The West Sacramento EDAC (Economic Development Advisory Commission) will hear a staff report on the status of trucking industry issues in West Sacramento at tonight's 5:45 pm meeting.

In November of last year, EDAC held a trucking forum at the California Trucking Association headquarters in West Sacramento.

From that meeting several issues of concern to the city were identified, according to a staff report written by Kathleen O'Leary, the city's redevelopment program manager:

■ Lack of zoning for trucking expansion,

■ city policies that adversely affect the trucking industry,

■ zoning policies which trucking industry representatives suggest are creating "trucking slums,"

■ lack of appreciation by the city for the contribution of the transportation industry to the city's economy and job base,

■ and a general "negative attitude" by the city toward the trucking industry.

In a letter to the chamber of commerce, Community Development Direct Steve Patek explained that interim solutions to the trucking industry complaints are very limited because the complaints involve the General Plan.

A city senior planner has been assigned issue a complete report on the matter and is expected to be finished by late July.

Patek expects to address the city council on the matter by September.

Terminally ill

Port commissioner Bingham quits

Port Commissioner Victoria Bingham has resigned from the port commission because she is suffering from terminal cancer.

Bingham, 45, filed a complaint against the port with the Sacramento County Grand Jury last year which resulted in a report criticizing the port on several matters concerning business operations at the port.

She leaves her position with $660 in travel expenses under dispute.

According to port officials, Bingham is the only commissioner who did not submit receipts for all of her expenses following a trip to a Pacific rim trade conference last year.

Man learns he was shot in the head

By Steve Marschke

Members of a Bay Area Sikh group attending a function at West Sacramento's I.L.W.U. Hall on 4th St. Saturday became involved with a violent altercation to which police responded in the early hours of Sunday morning.

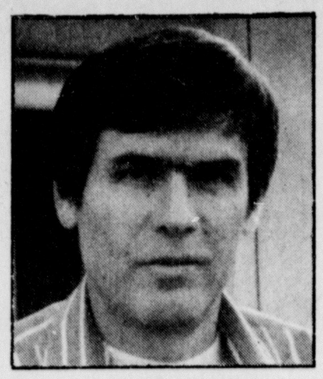
Lt. Russ Thomas of the West Sacramento Police Dept. said that the "altercation escalated into violence in which bats and sticks were used."

One man taken to the hospital for injuries he believed were caused by a baseball bat learned to his surprise that he had also been shot in the head by a .22 caliber gun.

"He knew he'd been hit with a bat, and we knew he'd been hit with a bat. He found out he'd also been shot with a .22 caliber bullet to the head," said Thomas. "The bullet penetrated the scalp and entered the skull but did not penetrate the brain. They don't expect him to have any complications."

Visiting in-laws will expect hospital-style cleanliness

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Last Thursday night I was visiting with a friend when he happened to ask me, "So, you got anything exciting planned for the weekend?"

"No, not really," I said. "Mostly just a lot of hiding."

"Hiding?" asked my friend with a smile. "From who?"

"From my in-laws," I answered. "They're coming down from Oregon to visit for a few days and I always try to make myself pretty scarce when they're in town."

"Do they visit often?"

"No, not really. Just once a year or so."

"Man," said my friend with conviction, "you ought to count yourself lucky. I know people who have to deal with their in-laws every single day."

"I wonder how people manage to do that?" I asked, shaking my head in admiration.

"To tell you the truth," said my friend, "I get along fairly well with my in-laws. You just don't like yours, huh?"

"Actually," I said, "I think it's more a matter of them not liking me."

"Really? How come?"

"Oh, I don't know. They're very conservative people, and when I first met them years ago, my politics were pretty liberal. Plus I was real opinionated in other areas back then and I guess I came across like I knew everything."

"Gee," said my friend, smiling even wider, "so what has changed?"

"Very funny," I said.

"So you just never really hit it off with your in-laws, huh?"

"Well, I guess I can't blame them," I admitted. "They had all these high hopes for their daughter, and the next thing they knew, she was headed off to a place called West Sacramento with a guy whose hair was longer than hers."

"They're only staying for the weekend this time?" asked my friend.

"Yeah, but things have been pretty squirrelly around my house for days now."

"Really? How so?"

"Well, to begin with, my wife is usually a very rational person, but when her mother comes to town, she has a tendency to go a bit off the deep end."

"What does she do?"

"For openers," I explained, "she starts asking me all kinds of strange questions I never hear any other time of the year."

"Like what?"

"Like do we have any TSP to mop the kitchen floor with...and do I have any special requests for the complicated meal menus she creates just for their visit."

"But those sound like pretty normal questions to me," said my friend.

"Trust me," I said, "a spotless kitchen floor and organized meals is not normal in a house with four kids. It can only mean one thing--that Grandma Margaret is coming to town."

"Grandma Margaret sounds like quite a character," said my friend, smiling again.

"She's actually kind of funny," I said. "But she's also one of those ladies who believes that cleanliness is next to godliness. She even scours every inch of her bathroom -- including the toilet -- every single day of the year and makes sure anyone who takes a shower in her house wipes down all the tiles when they're done."

"Wow," said my friend, obviously impressed, "I'd sure like to live in a house like that. My place is always a mess."

"Actually," I said, "my house is usually pretty clean -- especially considering the fact that we have all these kids -- but you should see it a few hours before Grandma Margaret arrives. It's kind of frightening."

"How do all your kids handle it?"

"That's the strangest part of the whole thing," I said. "They seem to really get into it. They actually clean up their rooms, take baths, get haircuts, all kinds of bizarre stuff."

"So, what's wrong with all that?"

"Nothing," I admitted, "it's just that when a man spends most of the year comfortably living more or less like Dan Conner on the Rosanne show, it's really hard to go home one day and suddenly discover you're Ward Cleaver."

"Does your wife know you feel this way about her parents visits?"

"Of course not," I said, lowering my voice. "And don't you dare tell her, either."

Wrong numbers: gotta have them

T.J. Smoot

"T.J. Smoot" is the pen name of a neighbor of yours who prefers to toil anonymously on his column writing.

One thing I've noticed over the past four years as a resident of West Sacramento is the inordinate number of wrong or prank phone calls we get. I've lived in places where there are a ton of telephone number turnovers, like Travis AFB and in Davis. But never, ever have I had this kind of a problem. Maybe in this town there's an unusual number of desperately despondent people with a lot of time on their hands who compulsively call strangers to satiate a long-term need to have their inner child loved and cared for. Either that or there are some real kooks out there.

We had calls for a Dan or Gary, thinking we were some kind of bar or auto parts store. That lasted four months. Then came the calls in the middle of the night, asking me inane things. Next came the elementary school girl who was sincerely trying to reach her little friend, three times. I can understand these, almost.

Soon we started getting calls from unidentified callers asking, "Did you just call me?" We even got these on our fax line. One night was particularly annoying, and after the fifth set of rings, I picked up the receiver and answered, "You have the wrong number." Dumbfounded, the "gnarly dude" on the other end popped off, "Oh yeah man, how d'ja know that?" I told him that he'd been calling a fax machine and reminded him that every time he called, the irritating tones began. Without missing a beat, I gave him my best imitation of this. Unfortunately my rendition was lost on him, and he criticized my intelligence using very small and common one and two syllable words. Then he hung up.

Even our cellular phone apparently has this West Sacramento problem. I was zipping around Thacather one sunny Saturday recently, and right after I had finished speaking with Mrs. S., the phone rang.

"Hi!" I chirped, thinking it was she.

"Hello?" An unfamiliar fe-

One of the best West Sac Little League seasons ever:

Local All-Stars in four divisions win district titles

By Ray Cushing

West Sacramento Little League all-star teams won district championships last week in all four of their age divisions -- the first time a single league has swept the District 6 championships since 1985, when West Sac players achieved the same feat.

In championship play last week, District 6 flags went to:

- the 9-10 year old All Star team;
- the Little League All-Stars (11-12 year olds);
- the Junior League All-Stars (13-year olds);
- the Senior League All-Stars (15-year olds).

The all-star teams include some of the best players from West Sacramento Little League teams. To win the district crown, the West Sac teams had to defeat teams comprising the best players from a half-dozen leagues in the surrounding area. Of particular significance is the fact that all four all-star teams went undefeated in their double-elimination district tournaments.

"I can put my chest out, but it was really the kids who did it," league president Walt Cheechov said Monday. "The parents, coaches, managers and the whole league can be proud that we gave the players the opportunity to do their best."

At press time, West Sac all-stars in three divisions -- 9-10 year olds, Junior League and Senior League -- were still completing in post-season play. The Little League All-Stars (11-12 year olds) lost two games in the sectionals in Rocklin over the weekend, eliminating them from further post-season action.

The 9-10 year olds, playing in the sectional tourney hosted by Washington Little League, lost their first game Sunday in the double-elimination tournament. The Junior League All-Stars were 2-0 in sectional play in Rocklin, and the Senior League All-Stars, also playing in Rocklin, were 1-0. Winners of the sectional titles go on to the regionals, with an eye toward the state championship.

The West Sacramento all-stars in all divisions scored one of the best post-season showings in the league's 40-year history. Founded in the 1950s, West Sacramento Little League is one of the oldest leagues in the state.

The league's facility at Memorial Park won much praise from visiting teams during post-season play, according to the league president.

"The parents took one look at our facility and said, 'This is fantastic!' And the players from other teams loved our covered dugouts, which kept them in the shade. I heard players saying, 'I wish our field was like this,' " Cheechov said. The league president praised Jim Stephan, who headed up the league's field maintenance effort this year, and City of West Sacramento maintenance personnel. "The City helped us a lot," Cheechov said.

The league president also had high praise for the managers and coaches of the four all-star teams. "It's a huge time commitment, requiring two practices per day," he said.

Managers of the all-star teams this year are John Cabral (9-10), Mike Coen (11-12), Bill Glidden (13) and Pete Palamidessi (15).

Also drawing the league president's praise were Tom Harris, who ran the all-star tournament at Memorial Park, and Dave Blake, who ran the Tournament of Champions, also held at the park.

Cheechov also singled out River City High School student Melissa Murphy, whose singing of the National Anthem at both tournaments elicited compliments from opposing team members and parents.

Unfortunately for Weldon and Washington, their cross-town rivals pulled out a 6-5 victory in the final moments, ending the season for Washington.

The San Francisco Giants (37-44) and Oakland A's (39-44) waited until July to have their June swoons. The Giants, who have lost 14 of the previous 19 games, made a big trade with the Reds.

The Giants acquired centerfielder Deion Sanders and four minor league prospects for starting pitcher Mark Portugal, gold glove outfielder Darren Lewis and reliever Dave Burba.

The Giants, who are in dire need of pitching, called up 23-year old rookie pitcher Jamie Brewington from their AA farm team in Shreveport and traded for veteran right-hander Luis Aquino. Aquino is 0-2 with two saves in 29 relief appearances with Montreal this season.

Look for the Giants to make another trade before the July 31 trade deadline to improve their pitching staff.

The good news is that Matt Williams' rehabilitation from a broken right foot began Monday night in San Jose with a two-run homer. The bad news is the Giants are nine games out of first place.

The A's have their own problems with their pitching staff and Mark McGwire is out again with a foot problem and veteran pitcher Dave Stewart retired from baseball. The A's are 0-7 against the Indians since the All-Star break, dropping the A's ten games behind the A.L. West leader California.

The 49ers are preparing to play their first pre-season game on Saturday, July 29, in Denver, while the Raiders are in Austin, Texas, working out for their first exhibition game with Dallas on Aug. 5 in Texas Stadium. The Raiders' first exhibition game in Oakland this year will be against the St. Louis Rams Aug. 12 at 1 p.m.

The Sacramento Knights (9-0) continue winning and are in first place in the CISL Western Division. The undefeated Knights travel to Anaheim on Saturday, then return to play at home on Thursday, Aug. 3 against the Washington Warthogs (5-5) and Saturday, Aug. 5 with the Dallas Sidekicks (5-4).

Boxing returns to Sacramento on Monday, Aug. 21 with West Sac's Willie Jorrin scheduled for the main event at the Radisson Hotel. Tony "The Tiger" Lopez (45-5-1) will fight at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas on Aug. 12 against the NABF junior-welterweight champion (140 lbs.) Freddie Pendleton (38-19-4). The winner gets a bout with Frankie Randall.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Thanks for the service

Not too many weeks ago, the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Dept. issued a press release announcing that one of its most valued employees, Phil Loney, was moving on to the private sector.

That a press release was written by the parks department is not news; this is the city department most enthusiastic about issuing news releases and most dogged about seeing them into print. What was unusual was the subject matter -- usually, a city employee leaving employment is not news unless he or she heads a department. Loney did not.

But Loney did warrant the exception. He was one of the most active and energetic employees in a department in which it is common for people to volunteer to do a little extra. He helped organize both the annual Riverbank Music Festival and the (hoped-to-be-annual) Great Train Ride as fundraisers for the parks department's programs. Indeed, he continued to work on the train ride event even after leaving the city's employ.

If everyone had the same kind of positive attitude as Phil, "government" would not have a bad name and bureaucracies might actually be efficient.

Good job, Phil, & good luck.

Letters to the Editor

It takes heart

I have been carefully observing the functioning of the West Sacramento City government for several months. I must say that it is functioning according to the rules of any bureaucracy, by the book. This can happen easily with a strong city staff. This is not new in East Yolo. It has happened in the past, before the city.

The elected officials are the buffers between the staff and citizens. It is the job of the West Sacramento City Council to provide the human understanding and exceptions to the book. The city council must have the compassion to set things right or do what needs to be done differently. The council should listen to the staff but do it their way. Their's is the heart that counts.

Self government is very important, but it takes work to make it work.

Shearing the citizens

We have to get this city moving. The city, and also other people have land in our fair city to develop. The administrators of our city must learn to work with both large and small developers. They listen, but they only hear those they want to hear. The majority council lies a lot of pomp and process. They don't seem to understand that most business is run by just plain blood and guts good sense. There is nothing wrong with selling the land, the city owned, at a reasonable price. Give some consideration to what the developer wants to build and then given him three years free property tax. They do this in Italy and it works very well. These people need to feel wanted, not ruled. In the meantime, you will collect all those building fees, the sales tax and maybe even a little beautification. You wet their appetite and desire to build in West Sacramento. (I love beautiful Prop. 13.) If the building sells, you also start collecting a higher property tax. Your finance director should understand this. (You catch more flies with money than you do with vinegar.)

When I started out, I had no knowledge of running a business or handling money. I learned fast as I had no room for mistakes. The city started out with a lot of money and has had little pressure to correct mistakes. The only correction they have made is increasing fees, sometimes unjustly. This might make it easier for staff. However, it puts a strain on the free enterprise system which is the city's only source of economic progress. The only knowledge I had or restaurants was Italian food, as I ate it all the time. There was already an Italian restaurant in the area, known for its excellence and three generations of family participation. I did not try to be just like this popular restaurant; I tried to do the best I could. I succeeded, sold a lot of pasta and did well for myself and my family. I have retired and my brother-in-laws are even doing better. The other restaurant is still a great restaurant. I did not have to compete with this restaurant. West Sacramento does not have to compete with Sacramento or with the skyscrapers in New York. We are different. We can have a wonderful future if the city council majority would just let it grow in a natural and steady way. Instead, the majority is trying to force the city in directions incompatible with the economic realties.

In my 40 years of experience selling spaghetti and meatballs I always put an extra meatball on the customers plate so they do not have to stop at McDonalds on the way home. Do not put special rules on 22-story buildings. Try to accommodate, adjust to circumstances; the developer probably knows more about his land and buildings and its potential than you or your staff do. Be a little humble. After all, its is their money. They have a lot at stake.

I know the city manager and the other administrators are very busy people, but the people that make the world turn are busy too. The importance of returning phone calls is very basic. You never know, it might be from the person who will bring in some of our city's future. It is very unfair that you have to call the two good council people to twist the staffs arms, in order to get your calls returned.

Let's talk about the planning department. When the State or the Federal government are dreaming up a new rule or regulation, the city should not always help them do something stupid or unpopular. It might not be what the people want. After all, isn't the city staff there to do what the people want. Why don't they check with the people before they act? The planning department now thinks the State will pass a law that you can no longer put fireplaces in new homes, so our building department goes along and writes this into our laws now. Why should Santa Claus's means of entry, the night before Christmas, be eliminated? Why should they help the State destroy Christmas?

I watched the EDAC meeting the other night on television and they had the police chief talking. He made sense to me. The commissioners asked him if he wanted more police on the streets. He said sure, but let's be realistic. If we get more police, we will have to cut the city budget some other place or increase taxes and at this time that is not feasible. I will make do for now but when the money is available I will know how to spend it wisely. It seems to me if we had a few more men and women on the city council that thought like that we would be much better off. We need people who understand, not people who climb to the top of the ladder by stepping on everyone's fingers on the way up.

They listen but they do not hear. The city council calls public meetings and public hearings for public input. But the good citizens of West Sacramento are just pawns in this game. I cam over from Italy with 15 cents and a loaf of bread. I never had to beg. But when I went to the city council meeting about my property down zoning I begged them to just leave my property alone. I learned I do not like begging. I feel like I am less a man when I have to beg. I also learned a lot about public input. Tom Jules, Tom Carpenter, Lou Arges, Mr. Meyers, Irene Eklund, Pat Flint, the nice lady in the wheelchair, Bob Mahalison, William Lowell and many others spoke to the city council. They listened but they do not hear. The meetings are only held to make what they do legal. The three person majority listen but is too smart to hear. They are at the top of that ladder and they are stepping on the fingers of the good citizens of West Sacramento. The council majority thinks we are a bunch of dumb sheep. Sheep get sheared once a year; the citizens of West Sacramento get sheared at every meeting of the city council.

Homeless camps

City council will consider at its August 2 meeting a draft of legislation outlawing impromptu homeless camps on the west bank of the Sacramento River. Increasing numbers and problems of drug use and human filth are cited as the main justifications.

Those living on the river bank have said they will break into abandoned (vacant) homes if forced from riverbank campsites.

Before we make changes, we weigh the pros vs. the cons and ask ourselves, "Is the change worth it?" And, "What are the consequences, good and bad?" is another twist to the same question.

We should these (and other) questions:

1) What source and how much is the monthly income of these campers?

2) Why can't that camper live in regular housing...are too many spending rent money for drugs?

3) Why do so many low-income people face the choice of paying three-fourths of their SSI check for rent or camp out (illegally) and use most of their money for drugs, booze, etc.? (Is it in part because they are not allowed to share the rent by too many landlords?)

4) Does part of the solution lie in strategic placing of several "porta-potties" throughout the city? (When one sees drivers relieving themselves where "there used to be a public restroom," one must wonder.)

5) Should not camping grounds and other areas -- from vacant buildings to bulletin boards -- list a 24-hour assistance phone number?

6) Does much of the solution lie in confronting/assisting those with addiction problems so that fewer will tend to (not only) break into vacant homes for their shelter, but (hopefully) fewer would break into occupied homes for food and sellable goods to support their habits? (Of course, our homes are never any more safe by uninvited visitors.)

We cannot simply "leave well enough alone," because "well enough" is self-contradictory: it is not well enough! It needs attention. Maybe a temporary use permit for campgrounds -- not necessarily our riverbanks -- with restrooms, showers, etc. would solve most of the problem. Land cleared of substandard housing could temporarily be used until someone buys and truly is about to build something new. A few trees could be planted and each "organized camp" could have their own bulletin board, including "help wanted" ads. Could this action save abandoned houses?

Affirmative action

Quoting President Clinton, "Affirmative action has been good for America...We should reaffirm the principle of affirmative action and fix the practice...We should have a simple slogan: Mend it, don't end it." Sounds like good old fashioned horse sense to me. In other words, don't throw the baby out with the bath water.

Tragically, the Regents of the University of California in a strictly political vote, ended the practice of affirmative action in the university system. Wilson

Now that the Republicans have gutted the EPA's clean air and water act, I wonder if the new requirements will affect the clean air and water requirements as set down by the EIR prepared for the paper plant.

Will this reduce, increase, or keep the same, the problems there already are in West Sacramento?

LETTERS from p. 5

had repeatedly demonstrated that he is willing to cut off vital services to the elderly, the disabled and even innocent children if he feels it will oil the wheels of his campaign wagon. His callous disregard for even the basic survival of his fellow man is legend so nothing he does any longer surprises me. Pete Wilson's disgusting lust for power at any cost is quickly becoming one of the saddest sagas in State history.

But I am disappointed in Ward Connerly, a black regent appointed by Wilson, who has become one of Wilson's hatchet men. Connerly and Associates handles several of the CDBG programs for the City of West Sacramento. I worked with him in this context and though at times discouraged by his agency's apparent lack of interest in the basic program goals, I did not anticipate he was capable of such outrageous hypocrisy. I would bet my bottom dollar that he won most of his contracts by exploiting the affirmative action issue and using his own minority status to help municipalities meet their required hiring goals. This is a perfect example of the part of the program that President Clinton should be overhauled and eliminated in the interest of fairness. Mend it, don't end it.

When author/poet Lillian Hellman was interviewed in her eighties and ask what was the saddest thing in her life, she said simply, "Watching each generation make the same mistakes all over again." How true. This is just the beginning of a Republican effort to return this country to the mentality of the 50s. And despite all the Nick-at-Night "Father Knows Best" nostalgia, these were very painful times.

Even for a white middle class woman, most doors of opportunity were bolted shut and we all know how much worse it was for minority groups. We fought so hard to finally wedge a foot over the sill. Women are still paid only 74 cents on the dollar compared to men for performing identical duties. Only four percent of top CEO's are women and minority men. Women with college degrees earn only 75 percent (on the average) as men with high school diplomas. We have not even been able to pass the Equal Rights Amendment. We must hang tough and maintain what little ground gained.

I am heartened to see the younger generation organizing to fight this new onslaught of discrimination. One way we can all help is to pressure the City of West Sacramento to award their contracts to companies that demonstrate support for the goals of the common working person. Totally boycott Ward Connerly and Associates because unfortunately, most Republicans don't respond to humanitarian pleas.

According to the world of Newt, affluent people are just reaping the rewards of their hard work and moral superiority. The rest of us are just a shiftless lazy lot who should be learning from watching their good example. People like Pete, Ward and Newt sit on the only logic they understand. If you can't hit them in the wallet, you're wasting your time.

Republicans accuse Democrats of creating class warfare. Well, we're sure trying but it isn't easy. All we ever asked for was "40 acres and a mule." If you care about affirmative action or love someone who does..."heads up." When Connerly's contract comes up for renewal, ask the city council to take our business elsewhere.

New VFW Auxiliary president will lead cancer fund drive

By Lillian Sembach
West Sacramento Auxiliary to Post No. 8762

Lucille Schlie is the newly-elected president of the West Sacramento V.F.W. Ladies Auxiliary for 1995-96.

The auxiliary is a volunteer organization whose sole purpose is to help the veteran and his or her family. They also teach patriotism and loyalty to our country, which is what Americanism is all about.

Coming soon is the auxiliary's largest scholarship program for students in grades ten through twelve, as well as several other scholarships. President Schlie's coming year will be for "cancer aid and research."

Bernice Gwinn swears in Lucille Schlie

We are unable to solicit funds for these many programs. In July of 1990, Schlie came up with the idea to hold a Sunday breakfast. It started out slow, with only 30 or 40 people, and by the end of the year we were able to donate a little over $1,000.00 to cancer aid and research children's hospital. We now serve an average of 100 per week. Last year we were able to give the Voice of Democracy contest winner of River City High School a $200.00 scholarship, and made donations to Youtville and Special Olympics. All the members work on these projects voluntarily. Just thought you would like to know, we have fun, but it is hard work for no pay. Commander Ohye and President Schlie will make a good team, as they are both very dedicated to the V.F.W.

SMOOT from p. 2

male replied. I could hear a bird squawking in the background.

"Hello? Who is this?" I tried, somewhat confused.

"Who is THIS?" she answered above the squawk.

"You called me. What do you want?" I cocked my head.

"No. You called me," She peeped.

"NO. You called ME." I felt my feathers ruffling.

"Are you on a car phone?" More squawking.

"YES!" I flapped.

"Oh." She giggled. "You must have the wrong number." Then she hung up.

Now for the past two and a half weeks, we've been getting calls from someone who would either not talk to us or leave a message on our answering machine. Just silence.

I ignored this for the first week and the second week got curious. It usually happened twice every evening, around 7:00 and 8:00 p.m. Finally one day from work I called Pac Bell and signed up for this fancy new option called "Star 69" allowing us to call back whoever just called us. We could then discover WHO was dialing our number and rudely hanging up. By the end of the day, I was excited and anxious to find out which yahoo was rudely interrupting our life on a regular basis. I came home and laid out my strategy for Mrs. S. To my dismay she had already solved our dilemma. She had received a call that morning similar to the ones in the past. It went like this. She had picked up the phone and stated her greeting. No answer. She tried again. Still no answer. One more time. A voice hurriedly spoke.

"Hello, er...Mrs. Smoot?"

"Yes."

"Uh, Hi. My name is George, and I work for MCI...." Apparently Mr. Marketer was using a computer to call us on a regular basis and for some reason couldn't hear us or our machine immediately. I was crestfallen! Story closed.

Or so it seemed. Tonight we got another call. Same M.O. They called and then hung up. Nervously we waited a few tense moments and pressed "Star 69." FINALLY we'd get to the bottom of this harassment! FINALLY some justice! FINALLY we could tell someone to "get a life!" The phone rang thrice. Our hearts beat rapidly. Would we know this person? Was it my twin sibling, separated at birth? Was it about a long lost aunt dying and willing me large sums of money? We would soon get to the bottom of this riddle. The ringing stopped. A woman with an accent picked up the phone.

"EL-LO?"

Suddenly we were dumbfounded and unprepared for an answer. Then we hung up.

Police log

July 17, 2:30 a.m.

An officer attempted a traffic stop involving a 20 year old man driving near Harbor and West Capitol with a headlight out. The driver attempted to flee, at speeds of 35-60 m.p.h., through red lights and stop signs. Police dispatch informed the pursuing officer that the suspect lived on Devon Rd., and the officer discontinued the pursuit. Another officer went to the suspect's home to wait for him, and made the arrest.

July 18, 12:45 a.m.

A 35-year old male Sacramento resident was seen driving up and down West Capitol Ave., stopping to talk to people known to be involved in the drug trade. A check revealed that his vehicle was stolen, and the man was arrested.

July 18, 6:35 p.m.

A couple from Wilton became involved in an argument inside a friend's car on Jefferson Blvd.

The man punched his wife, grabbed his arm, and took her by the hair and hit her head against the outside of the car. He was arrested, and found to have five rocks of amphetamine in his pants pocket.

July 19, 4:42 p.m.

A 24-year old transient man was stopped while driving a car in West Sacramento and refused to follow an officer's commands. He fled on foot from the 4th and D streets location and was apprehended, with heroin in his possession. He had no identification, but did have $1,010, almost entirely in bills $20 and smaller. He was booked.

July 21, 3:39 a.m.

A 25-year old male passenger and 29-year old male driver, both from near Marysville, were arrested after a pursuit ending in Sacramento. Their car ended up in a drainage ditch near West El Camino. The stolen vehicle had its ignition "punched," and the passenger possessed a throwing knife.

July 21, 7:21 p.m.

A 39 year old man used an explosive device to threaten to blow up a woman's house unless she gave him $160.

It was found that he also had outstanding warrants, and the man was arrested.

July 21, 7:30 p.m.

On Pierce St., a pair of men were pulled over for a vehicle violation. Two handguns -- one loaded -- were found in the car. The 26-year old passenger (a West Sacramento resident) and 20-year old driver (a Sacramento resident) were arrested.

July 22, 11 p.m.

A 34-year old man was identified as the man who had pushed a victim and stolen her purse. Two witnesses followed him until police could arrest him. The stolen property was recovered.

July 24, 8:25 p.m.

A burglary was reported occurring on Angel Ct. An officer arrested a 45-year old suspect at gunpoint, and the property owner returned to verify that the man did not have permission to be on the property. The suspect showed symptoms of being under the influence of drugs.

Police facility project

Local soroptimist chapter plans fundraiser for new interview room

From Soroptimist International of West Sacramento

President Janet Arunyakasem has announced that Soroptimist International of West Sacramento has adopted as their 1995-96 service project the furnishing of a "soft" interview room at the new city policy facility, scheduled to open in the spring of 1996.

This interview room will provide a more comfortable setting for victims of crime, such as child abuse, rape, spousal abuse and other instances when children or families are involved.

When victims of these types of crimes are being interviewed by the police officers, they are in effect reliving the crime committed against them. It is hoped that by providing a more comfortable, non-threatening environment, the stress these victims experienced will be relieved somewhat. Funds from the 1994-95 club service budget have been set aside for this project; however, a great deal more will need to be earned by the club to achieve this goal.

President Janet Arunyakasem and even coordinator Josie Andre have announced a special fundraiser, in which all money raised will go towards furnishing the interview room: an old-fashioned western roundup will be held on Saturday, August 26, at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, located at 11th and Soule Streets in West Sacramento. The evening will begin at 6:30 p.m. with no-host cocktails, followed by a delicious steak and chicken dinner at 7. The evening will be capped off with dancing at 9 p.m., to the music of West Sacramento's own Cindy Tuttle. Line dancing instructions will even be provided for those wishing to learn. Dave Bender, popular weatherman with Channel 10, will preside over all of the festivities as master of ceremonies. All members of Soroptimist International of West Sacramento are working hard to provide a fun time for all in attendance.

Tickets for the dinner-dance are $15 per person and can be obtained by contacting any Soroptimist or by calling 371-8126, 424-5767, or 371-8526. A raffle will also be held, with the following prizes: a Tahoe package for two, including two days/nights at Harrah's and four breakfasts and two dinners at the Forest Buffet and South Shore Room Show, first prize; $100.00, second prize; and $50.00, third prize. Winners need not be present to win.

This is a very worth project, and the members of Soroptimist International hope that all members of the community will join them in making this project a reality.

In Ramos' scenario, the port's loss of 20 percent of its land would be more than made up for in increased property values.

With the port's added property value, it would then be able to use its own land as collateral for a loan to raise the $10 million it needs to finish deepening the ship canal from 35 to 40 feet.

When the canal dredging is complete, the port would be able to use the income from the additional business it generates in order to pay off its loan.

Port Manager John Sulpizio expressed interest in the fact that people in the private sector are searching for solutions, but would hesitate to support a plan that places channel deepening as the last priority, places an additional debt burden on the port, and forces the port to give up 20 percent of its property.

"Its a matter for further investigation, but it can be complex, and the devil is in the details. From their standpoint, the bridge is the highest priority, from my standpoint, the highest priority is deepening the channel," he said.

"It looks to me like in this plan, the city gets its bridge, Ramco gets its road, and the port gives up 20 percent of its land," he said.

Proposed speedway project at Elkhorn falls through

By David Weller

The Oakdale developer who was promoting a world class speedway to be built between West Sacramento and Woodland is looking to other areas to build his race track, according to Frank Ramos.

Ramos owns the property the speedway was to be built on. He also helped pitch the idea to county officials.

"The Board of Supervisors decided they wanted to meet the financers. He didn't bring the key players up to meet them," Ramos said.

Now the man is eyeing property in Sutter County, according to Ramos.
